Q.05. Write precis of the passage:(10)

The character of good men is like that of trees. They live for others and do not lose their qualities even in losing their lives. They always follow the right path. Praise is immaterial to them. To live for one's own sake is to lead the life of beasts. Only those who lay down their lives for others will live for ever in a world of bliss.

It is physically impossible for a well-educated, intellectual, or brave man to make money the chief object of his thought as it is for him to make his dinner the principal object of them. All healthy people like their dinners, but their dinner is not the main object of their lives. So all healthy minded people like making money ought to like it and enjoy the sensation of winning it; it is something better than money.

A good soldier, for instance, mainly wishes to do his fighting well. He is glad of his pay—very properly so and justly so. He does not grumble when you keep him ten years without it—till, his main mission of life is to win battles, not to be paid for winning them. So of clergymen. The clergyman's object is essentially to baptize and preach not to be paid for preaching. So of doctors. They like fees no doubt—ought to like them; yet if they are brave and well-educated the entire object to their lives is to cure the sick. They on the whole, desire to cure the sick; and if they are good doctors and the choice were fairly to them, they would rather cure their patient and lose their fee than kill him and get it. And so with all the other brave and rightly trained men. Their work is first, their fee second—very important always; but still second.
